

What are access specifiers?

- Access specifiers allows us to restrict the scope or visibility of a package, class, methods, variables, or other data members.
- Access specifiers are used to define how attributes and methods of a class can be accessed.

There are three types of access specifiers:

1. Private
2. Public
3. Protected