

What is the SMTP protocol?

SMTP (Simple Mail Transfer Protocol) is a widely used protocol for sending email messages between computers over a network. It is an essential component of email communication and operates on the application layer of the Internet Protocol Suite. It supports both End-to-End and Store-and-Forward methods. SMTP uses port 25.